

INDIGENOUS CONNECTIVITY SUMMIT 2023 SPONSOR BROCHURE

The 7th annual Indigenous Connectivity Summit will take place in Alaska in May 2023. Hosted by the Indigenous Connectivity Institute, the community-led forum is the primary convening for Indigenous leadership and allies working across the United States and Canada to build a digital future on their terms.

A movement of Indigenous champions building solutions to improve connectivity on their terms.

Indigenous communities across North America live without the reliable, affordable internet they need in today's digital world. But a fast-growing movement of connectivity champions is making great strides to change this.

The Indigenous Connectivity Summit was formed in 2017 to bring together Indigenous leaders, network operators, researchers and policymakers to find solutions so that all Indigenous communities can connect to fast, affordable and sustainable internet.

The ICS has grown into a movement of champions focused on finding and building practical solutions to improve Indigenous Connectivity.

There are also opportunities to sponsor specific aspects of the event:

Sponsor the training days
$25,000 USD (2 available)

BENEFITS

- Special thank you at the training days
- Inclusion of logo on event signage and website
- Sponsorship noted in press release
- Invitation to speakers' reception

The Indigenous Connectivity Summit offer an opportunity for interested attendees to participate in a pre-event training course. Technical and policy trainings are offered through a series of webinars and virtual meetings leading up to the event. The sponsor of this portion of the event will directly contribute to a long-term connectivity solution for local Indigenous people.

Sponsor the community feast

$7,500 USD (2 available)

BENEFITS

- Special thank you at the Summit and reception
- Inclusion of name on event signage and materials

A unique offering of the Indigenous Connectivity Summit that sets it apart from other technical conferences is the commitment to a culturally grounded and community-led format. Following the first day of the Summit, there will be a community feast open to the local public featuring local Indigenous foods, performances, and handmade goods for sale. This will serve as an opportunity for Summit participants to meet with local community members to better understand and experience their culture and customs.

Sponsor Summit T-Shirts

$5,500 USD (1 available)

BENEFITS

- Sponsor name included on website

Summit participants will all receive a specially designed t-shirt featuring artwork from an Indigenous artist. These t-shirts will feature an image that is symbolic of the conference and setting and will be a reminder for all participants of the work they accomplished whenever they wear it.

Youth Travel Sponsorship

$2,500 USD per youth (10 available)

BENEFITS

- Special thank you at the Summit
- Photo opportunity with sponsored guests
- Sponsor name included on website

The Indigenous Connectivity Summit would not be a success without the many Indigenous people who help to coordinate and contribute to the event. However, many young people live in remote or rural areas, making travel to the conference prohibitively expensive. By sponsoring a youth participant, you will be directly responsible for ensuring those on the frontlines of Indigenous connectivity are able to attend the Summit,
